Joseph Patterson of McGill Maintenance Partnership Ltd. is the 23rd to compete at the national level, which is a testament to the quality craft professionals to compete for top honors in 14 competitions representing 12 crafts, the development efforts of ABC and its member companies, and a testament to the increasing number of young people considering craft careers.

Competitors were commended for their efforts and for choosing an alternative career path in skilled crafts by building a better future for themselves and the construction workforce that is safe, skilled and productive using flexible, competency-based training programs, which are the hallmark of the ABC program.

ABC member companies annually invest an estimated $1.1 billion to deliver construction apprenticeships and on-the-job training programs to 150,000 participants each year. In fact, ABC was founded in 1918 on the principles of competency-based training and time-tested apprenticeship programs.

ABC has a proud history of working together with community leaders, educators and government officials to build a skilled workforce in the construction industry.
